
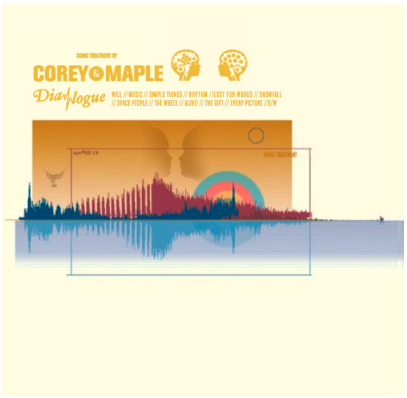
COREY & MAPLE

BIOGRAPHY

Corey & Maple is a two-man band and a production team of two friends who have been playing together in various rock bands since the early nineties. The music they make is driven by the passion for playing and endless search for the perfect song - with no boundaries, rules, or restrictions. They use all the tools, instruments and guest musicians necessary to catch the spirit of their songs.



Corey & Maple´s debute album “Dialogue” (released 2002) was based on samples and electronics, and originally was meant to be entirely programmed, but quickly took a turn towards more analog approach with real live instruments. Dialogue is a mixture of funky rhythms, electronically treated vocals and cinematic textures. Underneath, you can hear echoes of some of their musical influences throughout the years. A couple of major radio stations gave Dialogue fair amounts of airtime, and Groove Fm picked the album for “album of the week” in 2004.

The second album “Home In The Universe” (released 2007) broadens their musical horizon even more. This time, after a quite long song-writing period, the recording sessions were intense and full of impulsive creativeness, resulting in a fresh, down-to-earth style production. The album got its final direction during august 2006 sessions when C&M spent time mostly jamming, chopping and re-arranging songs. There are a lot of “hats-offs” to the great bands and artists who the guys grew up listening to. The electronics give place to live instruments and the sounds sometimes go blatantly 70´s. Rock, prog, jazz and spacey soundscapes shake hands on this album, taking you on small trips in space and time.
